

Journey Without Maps - Navigating the next stage of work + life

A workshop for people over 45

Want some tips and tools for strategising your next decades at work and play?

Come to this workshop!

Saturday
19 September 2015
10am-5pm

The Ecocentre
Griffith University
Kessels Road
Nathan, Qld

(onsite parking
available + buses nearby)

Pilot workshop
$110 (inc. GST)
including lunch + workshop
materials

Are you looking ahead to the next decades of your working life? Maybe you are wanting to change careers or start a business? Or do you want to adjust the balance between work and the other things you want to do?

Whether your goal is to keep working as you are now, change jobs or transition to part time work, flexible work, volunteering or retirement, it's time to think about a future beyond working 'til you drop.

The world has changed and people now approaching their fifties and beyond will need to find (or create) new pathways. Would you like to make a map of what the coming decades might offer?

'I just loved Journey Without Maps and it was certainly worth the trip from Brisbane. I loved all of the research that you provided in the course, as well as all of the fun, creative and practical stuff – and I'm looking forward to spending some more time with the takeaway materials that you provided.'

'I also loved your style of presenting - your authenticity, sense of fun, your broad experience and being able to have a laugh along the way. Thank you, Joanna.'
Jan Dalton, 57.

Journey Without Maps is an interactive workshop where you will take a snapshot of your work and life today - and then start to create your own strategic plan to take you to where you want to be. The emphasis is on work, but we will look at the other key life arenas as well.

The workshop is fun and practical, and will give you the tools to strategise your work/life future. This is the Brisbane pilot of this new workshop, so if you're approaching 50 (or 60, or 70) come along and have some fun as you look towards your life's second act.

Joanna Maxwell

Joanna is an accredited coach and trainer who helps individuals and businesses flourish. As the owner of Work In Colour, she uses the power of creative thinking to help clients advance careers, generate ideas and solve problems in the workplace. (And enjoy themselves along the way...)

Want to know more? Have a question?

W: www.joannamaxwell.com.au E: joanna@joannamaxwell.com.au

P: 02 9994 8020 M: 0421 310 370

Bookings: <http://journeywithoutmaps2.eventbrite.com.au>